ESU – The European Students’ Union - is the umbrella organisation of 44 national unions of students from 37 countries, and through these members represents over 11 million students. The aim of ESU is to articulate and promote the educational, social, economic and cultural interests of students at a European level towards all relevant bodies and in particular the European Union, Bologna Follow-Up Group, Council of Europe and UNESCO.
Introduction

This report tells a short story of ESU’s work in 2009. It is, however, not an exhaustive list of activities. It highlights some of the key areas that ESU worked on, while giving some examples of each general area as outlined in the Plan of Work adopted by the ESU members – National Unions of Students – in November 2008. We have linked to relevant web documents and articles to make it easier to review ESU’s work more in depth.

Full members of ESU can consult the Executive Committee reports to the Board Meetings 56 and 57 for a more comprehensive account of ESU’s activities in 2009.

On behalf of the Executive Committees 2008-09 and 2009-10, I would like to thank the other ESU elected representatives as well as the ESU members and other organisations and individuals who contributed to a successful year for the European student movement.

Ligia Deca
ESU Chairperson 2008-2010
Defending students’ rights through the development of the student movement

The development of the student movement was the overarching theme of the 2009 Plan of work. ESU members have had to face a number of external and internal challenges. Examples: the economic crisis, reforms in the institutional governance that reduced student participation, external pressure related to the definition of new educational agendas in the Bologna and Lisbon processes, as well as within the UNESCO framework for higher education debates.

Together with ESU’s International Cooperation Working Group, ESU’s Executive Committee worked hard to reinforce the global cooperation between student platforms. The final result was the full preparation of 2 meetings of international student NGOs and regional student platforms in Paris (January and July 2009), which increased the student message to the UNESCO World Conference on Higher Education (WCHE+10) through the Global Student Statement. The meetings of the regional platforms was essential for the work on mainstreaming the students’ voice into the communiqué of the UNESCO WCHE+10. Also, it enabled ESU to start a structured work towards setting up a new global student dialogue system.

ESU – The European Students’ Union - is the umbrella organisation of 44 national unions of students from 37 countries, and through these members represents over 11 million students. The aim of ESU is to articulate and promote the educational, social, economic and cultural interests of students at a European level towards all relevant bodies and in particular the European Union, Bologna Follow-Up Group, Council of Europe and UNESCO.
The 17th European Students’ Convention was titled Student empowerment through participation at national, continental and global level. Together with the Student Union Development Handbook, which was published in 2009, the event was aimed at empowering the ESU members to be stronger partners in the national context. The event ended with the adoption of the Prague Student Declaration, a document outlining the European students’ priorities for the next decade within the Bologna Process.

In 2009, the Student Union Development Committee did four study visits to look at and discuss the situation for student unions in Bosnia-Herzegovina, Luxembourg, Romania and Ukraine. The work on supporting the student movement did not stop here, as ESU also tried to show solidarity towards the student movements in Iran, Zimbabwe, Colombia and Moldova, where human rights were severely breached and students and student representatives’ lives were threatened.

ESU continued the fight for students’ rights and organised, jointly with OBESSU, the “Lights on the rights” campaign, aimed at promoting both ESU’s Students Rights Charter and the Declaration of School Students Rights. On the 70th Anniversary of the International Students’ Day on 17th of November, a joint ESU/OBESSU conference was organised, with the title Remembering the students victims of the totalitarian regimes and re-launching the role of student democracy.

Democratisation of Higher Education by fostering social dimension and equity

ESU’s political aim was to move the national governments towards concrete commitments in the field of social dimension/equity. Through the European Commission-funded Equity project we aimed at building the European and national student knowledge for a better impact of the students’ views in the reform processes simultaneously happening in the European Higher Education Area and European Union setting. Furthermore, ESU aims to achieve a gender balanced student and academic staff body, while implementing our internal Gender Mainstreaming Strategy.

At Board Meeting 57, the Equity handbook was distributed to the ESU members. In addition, ESU organised the 18th European Student Convention in Stockholm with the topic “Social dimension – the lost dimension?” The event had a special focus on student support services and gender equality, and participants adopted the Stockholm Student Declaration.

A content package with an overview of research on the topic of the equity is available on the ESU web site. An e-learning platform was developed by the ESU partner organisation SCIENTER, and has several trainings developed by the Social Affairs Committee and ESU’s pool of trainers. Three regional equity trainings were organised in Romania (Timisoara), Estonia (Tallinn) and Vienna (Austria).

ESU lobbied for the inclusion of an indicator on equity in the EU’s new strategic framework on education and training and within the future agenda of the Bologna Process, with the result of the inclusion in the Leuven/Louvain-la-Neuve communiqué of the recommendation for countries to set up national targets for the social dimension. The progress will be monitored at the European level.

Quality higher education for all with students in the centre

ESU has always been one of the biggest allies in the fight for more quality in higher education. In order to further empower students to be equal partners in this field, a study session was organised in July for a group of around 25 student experts on quality assurance. These experts will be consulted by ESU and will contribute to ESU’s work and events on education quality, and do reviews of higher education institutions and quality assurance agencies, either in cooperation with other stakeholders or as a result of initiatives by ESU alone. The session was funded by the Council of Europe. As another part of the work on QA structures, ESU co-organised the fourth European Quality Assurance Forum, together with the EUA, EURASHE and ENQA (these four organisations also form an informal network called E4).

At the seminar preceding Board Meeting 56 in Brussels, national student delegates prepared for the Leuven/ Louvain-la-Neuve ministerial conference. A doctoral students working group was elected at BM 56. In cooperation with the Executive Committee, the WG prepared the 57th ESU Board Meeting Seminar in Krakow on the third cycle, the link between higher education and research and doctoral students from an equity perspective.

Following the strategy and the coordination of the national student representatives in Leuven/ Louvain-la-Neuve, the Bologna Process ministerial communiqué featured areas such as student centered learning, emphasized the need for increased commitments in the fields of social dimension and mobility and reaffirmed the need for investment in higher education.

The Bologna With Student Eyes (BWSE) 2009 publication was launched during ESU’s Board Meeting 56 and disseminated in the Leuven/ Louvain-la-Neuve ministerial meeting. A Stakeholders’ Forum was organized in early September to discuss the Leuven/ Louvain-la-Neuve meeting follow-up and to have a critical appraisal of the BWSE 2009 publication.

ESU hosted the February 2009 E4 meeting, in which a common position was reacged at the E4 level upon 3 key paragraphs of the Leuven/ Louvain-la-Neuve communiqué: on quality assurance and the future role of the E4 group, on quality assurance in trans-national education and with regard to so-called transparency tools. This position aided in reaching the final content of the communiqué. See also the chapter “Enhancing the student contribution to the Bologna Implementation” below.

ESU participated in the stakeholder consultations of the OECD AHELO (Assessing Higher Education Learning Outcomes) project, while expressing strongly the position against this project being used as a basis for a ranking of higher education institutions.

In the autumn, ESU developed a financial crisis survey to assess the effects of the economic downturn to students and student unions. Its results were made available at the 18th European Student Convention and will be used for raising the awareness on the dire need for investment in higher education as a solution to the crisis.

ESU also signed a Partnership Memorandum of agreement with the European University Association that makes ESU the official partner in the selection of the student experts involved in the Institutional Evaluation Programme (IEP).

“20% mobile students by 2020” – moving towards the European Dimension of HE through making mobility of students a reality

ESU’s main strategy in this field was to actively promote the results of the “Let’s GO!” campaign and to start a follow-up initiative that includes a stakeholders’ coalition (teachers, students and higher education institutions) for developing a European strategy for mobility. At the same time, ESU pushed for the adoption of the “20% mobile students by 2020” at the ministerial conference in Leuven/Louvain-la-Neuve.

The strategy was successful, and the above mentioned benchmark was adopted as an official European Higher Education Area benchmark. After the ministerial conference, ESU, Education International (EI) and the European University Association (EUA) set up an informal Working Group on mobility aimed at contributing to the Bologna Follow-Up Group discussions on mobility indicators and benchmark monitoring and draft a commonly agree set of mobility principles.

Mobility was also one of the key elements in the Election Manifesto presented by ESU ahead of the European Parliament elections in April.

Enhancing the student contribution to the Bologna process

ESU has been undergoing a continuous activity of enhancing our contribution to the Bologna process, which includes a general project framework on the issue: Enhancing the Student Contribution to the Bologna Implementation (ESCBI), a project funded by the European Commission.

ESU – The European Students’ Union - is the umbrella organisation of 44 national unions of students from 37 countries, and through these members represents over 11 million students. The aim of ESU is to articulate and promote the educational, social, economic and cultural interests of students at a European level towards all relevant bodies and in particular the European Union, Bologna Follow-Up Group, Council of Europe and UNESCO.
Bologna-related issues have been included among the topics of discussion at all ESU European Student Conventions and Board Meetings across the year. There was also work on assessing and forming a student point of view on what the achievements of the first decade of Bologna have been.

Top among these activities was a European Training Conference titled “European Higher Education Area 2020: Making it a concrete reality!” in Brussels, and the preparation and coordination before Leuven/Louvain-la-Neuve ministerial conference. ESU and students from the national delegations successfully brought forth issues such as the need for equity, fostering of a functional social dimension and the importance of having more student-centred education.

One of the other major lines of activities was the preparation of the Bologna at the Finish Line (BAFL) publication, which was a follow-up of ESU's Bologna With Student Eyes publications that were launched for every ministerial conference from 2003 onwards. The BAFL publication included a chapter on every single area of the Bologna process implementation, as well as political recommendations on future development and a series of opinions by other important stakeholders involved in shaping the future European Higher Education Area (EHEA).

Complementary to BAFL, a documentary called «Faces of Bologna» was filmed at several locations across Europe in order to get a grassroots perspective on the process's implementation. This was meant to gauge the practical impact of policy decisions at a European level. Both the documentary and BAFL were published in 2010.

Finances

ESU’s spending totalled 673,359,46 EUR in 2009. ESU is still dependant on various donors and projects to supplement the income from the membership fees (EUR 105 000 in 2009). Among other sources, ESU received funds from the European Commission and and from the Council of Europe. Education International and UNESCO contributed in particular to support ESU’s work on bringing together other regional student platforms.

The various student conventions and the board meetings were supported by the respective governments of the Czech Republic; the Flemish and French Community of Belgium; and Sweden.

ESU plans for 2010: ”Towards true student centered learning”

In 2009, ESU applied for, got approved and started planning the implementation of the project Time for a paradigm change: student centered learning (T4SCL). The planning included the preparation of a survey on teaching and learning methods among ESU member organizations.

This is a joint project with Education International, and it is based on the long-standing need to clarify and deepen the academic community and policy makers' understanding of the practical implications of the recent paradigm shift from teacher to student centered learning. The call for the shift in philosophy is explained by the increasingly diverse profile of the learner, the demand for increased educational quality and the drive to increase equity in learning.

Among the priorities and activities in the PoW: pushing for recognition of prior learning without financial burdens for students; organising conferences on SCL in Romania and Belgium; participation in the ”Access to Success: Fostering Trust and Exchange between Europe and Africa” project of the European University Association (EUA) to gain knowledge on the situation regarding access and retention in Africa; mainstreaming student participation and thus pushing for a more democratic approach in the implementation of the Lisbon agenda priorities; continue the mandate of the doctoral students working group on the third cycle and the link between higher education and research.

On rankings

“We are afraid that a focus on rankings just moves the attention from quality assurance when we are just starting to implement European standards and guidelines, and that institutions would focus on fulfilling the rather limited criteria present in the rankings rather than work to build a coherent quality-assurance system.”

Ligia Deca in the European Voice, February 5

On ERASMUS exchanges

"Erasmus is a good opportunity for students, but the numbers are small and the amount the students get is not enough. Only students with a good economic background can afford to go on Erasmus."

Anita Liice in the New York Times, February

On the Bologna Process

"Much has changed, bringing benefits to millions of students across Europe. And yet, many of the action lines will remain unfulfilled by 2010. A renewed and ambitious Bologna agenda is therefore essential to make the original vision of the EHEA an unequivocal reality for all European students, regardless of origin, background, means or ability, by 2020."
