Welcome!

Dear Friends from the European student movement,

I am most happy to welcome you on behalf of Federation of Estonian Student Unions (EÜL) to the 35th European Students' Convention (ESC) in Tallinn. EÜL is hosting ESC for the very first time and we have chosen our medieval yet high tech capital as the intriguing venue.

The ESC "Inclusive Student Movement" concentrates on the safety and well-being of international students in the society and their inclusion in the student movement. EÜL sees problems with the latter aspects both in Estonia and in Europe at large. Together with globalization the internationalisation of higher education in Europe has increased rapidly. Each year there are more and more students who continue their studies abroad. Unfortunately, different societies are not always welcoming of international people, causing the students to experience discrimination in different forms. Furthermore not all higher education institutions are prepared to offer the necessary support and information needed to make the integration of international students and the overcoming of cultural barriers smooth. In addition, there is also a lack of representation of international students on the local, national and international level in the student bodies.

The prior description paints a quite gloomy picture. We see there's a lot of room for improvement. And there always will be because its like Don Quixote and his fights with the windmills. Inclusion in higher education is never going to be a topic that will reach its ideal state, just like the well-being of students. It is a topic that will rise up again, time after time. And to me that repetitive process is a sign of inclusion itself. A sign of empathy, a sign of new knowledge. The need and the desire to analyze situations and improve conditions for others. And as with most topics, the change has to start within. Thus, during these 4 short days, we hope to enlighten a spark or to start a journey together to find answers on how to initiate the change, how to guarantee the well-being and the involvement of international students.

We hope that your stay in Estonia will be unforgettable and that you will be able to take all the new knowledge you have gathered and fruitful ideas you have shared during the ESC back home.

Thank you for coming and remember that you are always welcomed back!
NB, our population is 1,3 million - we actually do need you.

Britt Järvet,
Chairperson of EÜL

Important!

Dear Participants,

For enhancing the quality of education we need students with different backgrounds and culture to not reproduce the values, research and society of today but to draft ones of tomorrow to combat the challenges our world will face.

Internationalisation at home, the concept of having an eye-opening international experience without physically crossing borders has become a mantra for many higher education institutions. It assumes that the lived lives, values and perspectives of mobile students contribute to the learning experience of the locals. Taking this for granted, that this will happen out of itself, borders to naïveté. Exchange of knowledge and experience can only happen when we have platforms for sharing our stories and ideas. Inclusion is vital for this to happen. We need to create environments where we can talk, discuss and spend time together. It can take place in the teaching rooms, but if we reduce it to this, we fail to catch the social aspect of internationalisation, which is to influence and change mindsets.

Students themselves can create inclusive spaces and make sure that our activities, organisations, societies and initiatives are open to all, including internationals.

As student representatives, we do not only carry the voice of the local students. Ideally, our organisation should, therefore, mirror the diversity on campus and in society at large, but we often do not. Claiming that underrepresentation of international students challenges our legitimacy in itself, is to oversimplify the situation. Maybe other aspects need to be taken into account. Do translating documents require too many resources? Holding discussions in English contribute to exclusiveness by adding language proficiency as a prerequisite for participation? And is removing physical and practical obstacles sufficient to proclaim inclusivity?

These next days will be used to dive into the topic of inclusion, participation and how we can contribute to facilitate, adapt and reach out to international students. EÜL, our excellent hosts, have designed a genuinely interactive programme, with the support of the European Youth Foundation. I encourage all to take an active role in the sessions and activities so that we can co-create solutions and explore possibilities for making our education, organisations and the social environment more inclusive for all students.

With wishes of an inspiring convention,

Helge Schwitters

President of ESU

Tallinn

Tallinn, the capital of Estonia, lies on the southern coast of the Gulf of Finland. Today's Tallinn is an exciting mix of old and new. At the heart of the city lies the best preserved medieval old town in Northern Europe. The old town, built in the 15-17th centuries, has been astonishingly well preserved and was inscribed on the UNESCO World Heritage List in 1997.

A stone's throw away from the beautiful old town you'll find the city's business centre with modern towers, luxurious hotels and large shopping centers; the wooden districts of Kadriorg and Kalamaja filled with cozy cafes; and of course the sea side with lovely beaches and promenades.

For sightseeing we recommend the following places:

The Old Town of Tallinn is an exceptionally complete and well-preserved medieval northern European trading city. The city developed as a significant centre of the Hanseatic League during the major period of activity of this great trading organization in the 13th-16th centuries. The Old Town is a combination of the upper town on the high limestone hill and the lower town at its foot. The upper town (Toompea) with the castle that nowadays hosts the Estonian Parliament and the Stenbock House - the offices of the Prime Minister, has been the administrative centre of the country. Make sure to visit the viewing platforms located in Toompea! The lower town preserves to a remarkable extent the medieval urban fabric of narrow winding streets and fine public and burgher buildings.

Kadriorg district. Kadriorg palace (today's Presidential palace) and art museum surrounded by manicured Kadriorg Park was once established by Tsar Peter the Great as a manifestation of love to his wife Catherine I. The 18th-century park featuring fountains and streams, is surrounded by equally historical wooden houses. Kadriorg is also a home to Estonia's largest art collection exhibited in KUMU art museum of Estonia, Kadriorg Art Museum and Adamson-Eric museum, all nestled together along the edge of the park.

Kalamaja district. Often called the "hipsterville" of Tallinn, this once closed off Soviet border zone is conveniently located between the scenic Tallinn coast and Old Town and hides some real architectural gems. New cafes, bars and galleries have transformed the former industrial complexes of the historical wooden townhouse district, making it the fastest developing area of Tallinn attracting creatives and those young at heart.

Telliskivi is the hub of Kalamaja with its many restaurants, theatres and an indoor shopping street selling everything from organic cosmetics to Estonian design. Nearby you'll find Estonia's largest and coolest maritime museum

Hipsters!

Seaplane Harbour as well as the once infamous Patarei sea fortress and prison, peeking into the dark history of the past Soviet occupation.

The most exciting maritime museum in Europe is located in the Seaplane Harbour. The harbour is best known for its architecturally unique Seaplane Hangars, built a century ago as a part of Peter the Great sea fortress, today, about 200 authentic items are on display at the seaplane hangar: there are many ships to see, you can go globe-trotting in a submarine, have your picture taken in a navy uniform, fly in flight simulators, watch films etc.

The Tallinn Television Tower in Pirita is the tallest building in Tallinn and Estonia with 314 metres. The TV Tower is a great tourist, culture and leisure centre, offering a panoramic view from 170 metres and introduction to Estonian history. On your way to Teletorn you can enjoy the beautiful view of Pirita seaside promenade and Tallinn Song Festival Grounds, which holds a special place in Estonians' hearts as the birthplace of the Singing Revolution - a massive, musical demonstration against Soviet rule in 1988 that set the nation on its road towards re-independence. Today, the Festival Grounds is best known as the place where every 5 years the Song Festival is held, in which nearly 25,000 singers take part, attracting an audience of nearly 100,000.

ESU Code of Conduct

Preamble

Based on the principles of equality, accessibility and respect, that ESU has given itself and agreed upon by adopting this code of conduct at the Board Meeting 68 in Yerevan, Armenia, the representatives and participants on internal and external events are expected to adhere to the points detailed below. The purpose of this document is to have guidelines that prevent unwanted behavior in the organization and also determine the process to follow up on potential breaches. The participants of each event have to assure that they are aware of the code of conduct and behave according to it. The EC is responsible for promoting the code of conduct in an appropriate way in the beginning of each event.

Participation rules

Actively engage in the organized activities during seminars, panel sessions and discussions as well attending as all the organized sessions, meetings, discussions and debates.

Respect the timeframes given by the organizers of the event.

Respect the event's facilities and any rules associated with such use.

Respect the environment and take care about their surroundings.

General Beliefs

Treat everyone equally irrespective of socio economic background, ethnicity, gender, age, sexual orientation, religious beliefs, political views, reduced mobility, gender expression, disabilities or any other basis of discrimination, abstaining from any direct or indirect discrimination as well from any form of harassment.

- Not make any inappropriate jokes or remarks, based on any discriminative grounds that cause people to feel uncomfortable or discriminated against.
- Behave and react towards their colleagues with respect.
- Respect the different multicultural backgrounds of their colleagues and reflect on the own behavior.
- Proactively create an inclusive welcoming atmosphere for all of the participants, during both formal and informal parts of the event.
- Not use demeaning or abusive language towards other participants
- We are emphasizing herein that this list is not exhaustive and that the violations of the Ethical Guidelines might happen outside of the frames given by this Code of Conduct.

Rules of Procedure

Depending on the gravity of the behavior, the EC in accordance with the ad hoc committee (see below) reserve the right to address the issue in the best way they see fit by applying one or more of the measures listed below through the set procedure.

Active Legitimacy

Any of the participants witnessing the breach or the victim her/himself may report the matter to one of the two persons specifically entrusted to that role for that particular event.

These are designated by the EC for every event and are bound to discretion towards the reported matters. The trusted persons need to be briefed by the equality coordinator before being assigned to be able to handle sensitive situations adequately.

The two persons will be announced at the beginning of the event and should reflect the participants' diversity.

The person informed immediately informs the second trusted person. This does not apply, if one or both are involved in the breach. Afterwards the EC and the Equality Coordinator are informed about the fact that there has been a breach and an ad hoc committee needs to be put in place.

However, in case it was not the victim itself reporting the breach, the trusted persons must not forward any information before consulting the perceived victim.

The Acting Procedure

Upon the briefing, the EC has to set up an ad hoc committee balanced with regard to region, gender and other relevant parameters of four (4) persons within two (2) hours. If the breach is reported to the EC outside of the official parts of the event, the EC has to set up the ad hoc committee during the first two (2) hours of the next meeting day. The ad hoc committee is bound to discretion and obliged to handle the issue brought up with the utmost care.

The ad hoc committee is chosen by the EC including one representative of the EC, the Equality coordinator and two (2) representatives from member unions not involved in the conflict.

At least two members of the ad hoc committee will be of a different gender.

The ad hoc committee will immediately look into the report, consult the acting parties and bring a decision whether there has been a breach of the Code of Conduct or not. If the ad hoc committee decides, there has been a breach of the Code of Conduct, it will immediately decide upon enacting one of the below proposed measures, on their free estimation of the most appropriate reaction to the breach.

The ad hoc committee informs the involved parties. The EC is to be informed directly after the information of the involved parties in writing, including the time of the briefing. This procedure should not take longer than 24 hours, if possible.

The decision making process within the committee needs to be unanimous.

If the situation requires it, the decision of the ad hoc committee will be read before the beginning of the next session of the event.

Measures

- Spoken warning to the perpetrator in question
- Written warning to the perpetrator read before the beginning of the next session of the event in question
- Removal of the perpetrator from the session/event in question
- Official ESU letter to the sending organization of the perpetrator
- Restriction of participation in future ESU events of the individual breaching the code.
- Allow the injured party (also if no individual was harmed) to make a statement before the next session
- Any other measure not mentioned here, in agreement with the Executive Committee. No public action must be taken without the consent of the injured individual or party.

Right to Appeal

If the perpetrator (or their NUS) in question, or the injured party, feels that the EC decision is wrongly based, whether on fact or principle, they must send in an appeal in writing to the EC or the trusted person within twelve (12) hours. After receiving the appeal the EC puts a second ad hoc committee in place. The same rules and procedures as outlined above are to be followed. Excepted the Equality Coordinator all the other members need to be different from the first one.
